

Carol Beck

Director, Supporting Public Schools of Choice

Carol Beck is the Director of Supporting Public Schools of Choice, a project of several local foundations which provides advocacy support and technical assistance to schools of choice in Baltimore City, including charter, transformation and other contracted schools. She joined SPSC in February, after five years as Maryland Director for The SEED Foundation, playing a leadership role in the development of the SEED School of Maryland, the state's first public college prep boarding school program. Carol's three children attend Baltimore City Public Schools.
